ZONING QUESTION BEFORE COUNCIL

A regular meeting of the City Council was held last Monday evening, all members being present, and Mayor H. H. Smith presiding.

Harry Apti, who had previously applied for a license to operate a cabinet shop and planing mill on Mission street, between Crocker and Wellington avenues, was represented at the meeting by his attorney, who asked the Council to reconsider the matter and allow Mr. Apti to operate his manufacturing business at that location. The City Attorney explained the situation very thoroughly, and advised the Council that a cabinet shop or planing mill in that location would be in violation of the zoning ordinance. Within the boundaries of Daly City there are industrial districts where such a business can be lawfully carried on.

The street committee reported that at the intersection of Junipero boulevard and Belle avenue, San Francisco, there would be a sign installed by the California State Automobile Association directing motorists to Daly City

The street committee also reported that work that was to have begun last Monday on the removal of weeds would not begin for a week or two, owing to the recent rain. This year there will not be as much work as in previous years. Many residents have been doing their own weed cleaning. The committee has on file at least eighty-five names, and will give married men who do not work at the park the preference.

The fire committee thanked the fire department for the good work and services rendered at the fire in Colma last week.

The monthly report of the Poundmaster was read and ordered filed, and monthly bills were read and ordered paid.

CITIZENS TO ASSIST BOY SCOUT TROOP

At a meeting held in the Council chambers of the City Hall, presided over by Councilman A. J. Bodien, acting as temporary chairman, and attended by representatives of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Daly City Merchants' Association, Fraternal Order of Eagles, and Boy Scouts of America, plans were formulated to rehabilitate the present troop of Boy Scouts of Daly City and build from this nucleus so that ultimately all boys of the community will be enrolled.

Edward A. Barrer, field representative for San Mateo county district of the Boy Scouts of America, was present and explained Scouting and what it meant to the community, and the boy especially. He urged the citizens to take an active part, and explained the importance of forming a Troop committee which will supervise the activities of this organization in Daly City.

Chester Smith was chosen Scout Master and was assured every support and co-operation.

The next meeting date was set for Tuesday evening, June 9, at 8 o'clock, in the Council chambers of the City Hall, and interested citizens are urged to attend.

OVER THREE HUNDRED GUESTS AT RECEPTION

Mr. and Mrs. F. Guisti, of 221 South Park avenue, entertained over three hundred of their friends at their home last Sunday, where they held a reception in honor of their daughter Mary, who received her first communion at Our Lady of Perpetual Help church in the morning, and their son Leo, who celebrated his twentieth birthday. Oselio Sardi, a friend, was in line for congratulations, as he also was celebrating his birthday.

During the afternoon and evening friends and relatives called, from all parts of the state, coming from as far south as San Diego and Los Angeles. At noon dinner was served to thirty-two friends and relatives, and during the afternoon and evening a buffet luncheon was served. A three-piece orchestra furnished music for dancing.

RANCHER RETURNS AFTER MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE

Louis Figone, Lawndale rancher, who disappeared from his home, and for several days was believed by friends to have been "taken for a ride" by his enemies, has returned to his home. Figone was missing for several days and the newspapers carried stories indicating that he had probably been murdered.

Figone is said to have declared that he remembers nothing since he "took a drink with some friends."

LOCAL RESIDENTS ENJOY LOW TAXES

Daly City residents will be surprised, and agreeably so, to learn that the State Controller's annual report on the costs of city government in California shows some very interesting figures and comparisons very favorable to Daly City.

Using the 1930 census figures, the per capita cost of city government in California is shown as $22.38 per person. And it is most interesting to note that the costs in Daly City are only $8.19 per person.

The other cities of San Mateo county average about the same as cities all over the state, showing an average annual cost of $22.64 per person.

Cities of similar population as Daly City show an average of $20.44 per person.

For several years Daly City's low government cost has been a subject of favorable comment in the State Controller's office, and has been cited as an example of economic city government that others might study and follow to advantage.

The exact comparisons from the annual per capita cost stanpoint could not be fully worked out until the census was taken in 1930.

The figures show a lower cost of operation in every department and in every segregation.

WOODROW WILSON P. T. A. HAS INTERESTING SESSION

The members of the Woodrow Wilson-Vista Grande Parent-Teachers' Association held their regular meeting May 19 at the Woodrow Wilson school. Among the many things discussed was a delightful report from Mrs. Woodside, who had been a delegate to the district convention at San Mateo.

The delegates to the state convention were elected. The president, Mrs. Eva Page, and the incoming president, Mrs. M. Woodside, were the two chosen.

The graduates are to have an outing during the last week of school, under the guidance of several of the mothers and their teachers.

Installation of officers and Fathers' night will be held on the evening of June 18, at the Crocker club rooms.

Mrs. Talmadge was asked to take charge of the party to be given to the room that had the most mothers present at the meetings during the last school term. Miss McGown's second grade won the treat.

After the meeting the ladies were served with iced lemonade and cake.

ENTERTAINS GIRL FRIENDS AT A PAJAMA BRIDGE PARTY

Last Saturday evening Mrs. Lorraine Wall entertained a number of her girl friends at a pajama party, at her home on Bellevue avenue. A number of the young ladies who were there had traveled extensively, so papamas of several foreign countries were worn, including China. The house throughout was artistically decorated in pink and green. The evening was spent in playing bridge. Those carrying away honors for the evening were Mrs. Muriel Vlasoff, Miss Audrey Diamond, and Miss Sidney Welch. The surprise of the evening was when Mrs. Wall announced that the young ladies were to have their fortunes told, as a friend had offered their services for the evening. At midnight a dainty supper was served in the dining room to the following guests: Mesdames Muriel Vlasoff and Dorothy Donovan, of San Francisco; Roberta Allen, of Alameda; Mabel Lorenz, Charlotte Collins, Lenore Stockton and Helena O'Connor, of Daly City; Misses Audrey Diamond and Bessie Hulten, of San Francisco; Sidney Welch and Jean Hobard, of Berkeley; Margie O'Connor, Tessie O'Connor and Lorraine Wall, of Daly City.

EL CARMELO DRILL TEAM PLAN WHIST AND DANCE

Don't forget the whist and dance to be given by members of the drill team of El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, Native Daughters of the Golden West, Wednesday evening, June 17, at the Masonic Hall. The proceeds of this affair will be used to defray the expenses of the drill team to represent Daly City and Colma at the celebration on September 9th at Los Angeles. The twenty young ladies in the team are working very hard to make this the success that their past affairs have been. The Misses Alice Boles and Lucille Krause, of San Francisco, and Miss Edith Taylor, of Daly City, are in charge, and assure all who attend a most delightful evening. Music will be furnished by Heinie's orchestra.

CROCKER P. T. A. HAS NEW OFFICERS

Wednesday afternoon of last week, at a special meeting, the members of Crocker P. T. A. installed their new officers for the coming yer.

Mrs. Julia V. Jordan, the president, presided at the meeting. After a short business session the meeting was turned over to Mrs. E. Bartlett, vice-president of the Seventeenth district, P. T. A., who conducted the installation ceremonies.

The officers installed were: Mrs. Ethel Bolger, president; Mrs. Della Campbell, vice-president; Miss A. E. Suber, honorary vice-president; Mrs. Nell Caine, secretary; Mrs. Gertrude Walker, treasurer; Mrs. Anne Eason, financial secretary; Mrs. Julia Jordan, historian; Mrs. Catherine McDermott, parliamentarian; Mrs. Helen Gratham, auditor.

The guest speakers, Mrs. E. Bartlett, Mr. R. L. Crane, district superintendent of schools, and Miss A. E. Suber, each gave a short talk and a word of greeting. Other guests were Mrs. Delbert Irwin, second vice-president of Longfellow P. T. A., Mrs. Maizie Boyle, president of General Pershing P. T. A., and Mrs. Marjorie Woodside, secretary of Woodrow Wilson-Vista Grande P. T. A.

A most interesting program followed, consisting of solos by Mrs. Orvilla Pauw, a recitation by Shirley Yates, and a piano solo by Corinne Pauw.

Upon the conclusion of the program those assembled were invited to partake of delicious refreshments prepared for the occasion. The table was a mass of gorgeous blossoms of every hue and kind. Shower bouquets were placed everywhere, and made the club rooms a beautiful place to behold. Corsages of old-fashioned flowers were presented to each guest and also a lovely gardenia. These were a surpris to all of the members from Mrs. Ethel Bolger, parilamentarian.

Every one left the meeting glad to think they had been able to be present.

CELEBRATES EIGHTH BIRTHDAY

Robert Byrne, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Byrne, of Irvington street, celebrated his eighth birthday on Friday of last week at a birthday party given in his honor with a group of young friends. Those who helped him celebrate the occasion were Pearl and Bobby Caine, Doris, Betty, Bruce, Frances and Beverly Davis, Hazel, Dorothy and Jack Eason, and little Patty Austin, Dorothy and Howard Byrne.

DANIEL J. HASTINGS PASSES ON

Mrs. Marie Hastings, of Evergreen avenue, is receiving the sympathy of her many friends upon the death of her husband, Daniel J. Hastings, who passed away at their home on Friday of last week. Mrs. Hastings leaves, besides his wife, two brothers and two sisters to mourn his loss. The funeral services were held last Monday morning, with requiem high mass at Our Lady of Perpetual Help church. Interment was at the Holy Cross cemetery.

HOW A BOY CAN BECOME A SCOUT

With the boy who reads this the first question will be: "How may I become a Boy Scout?" There is no difficulty about it, for it is desired to enlist as many boys as possible. Information in regard to becoming a Tenderfoot may be had by calling me at Randoph 0615. Any boy between the ages of twelve to eighteen is eligible to become a Boy Scout. It is possible for a group of boys on your street to form a patrol, but it is wiser to join a patrol already organized.

A patrol consists of eight boys, one of whom becomes a patrol leader and another the assistant patrol leader. A troop consists of two or more patrols, and the leader. The leader of a troop is called the Scoutmaster. The sponsors or committee guiding and assisting the troop and Scoutmaster is called the troop committee. There can be no patrols or troops without a Scoutmaster or assistant Scoutmaster.

There are three classes of Scouts among the Boy Scouts of America—the Tenderfoot, the Second Class Scout, and the First Class Scout. Before a boy becomes a Boy Scout Tenderfoot he must pass the prescribed tests as set forth by the National Council. A Tenderfoot is therefore superior to the ordinary boy because of his fraining. To be a Tenderfoot means to occupy the lowest grade in scouting. A Tenderfoot after serving for a term of one month and meeting the required tests successfully for the next step becomes a Second Class Scout and so on until he reaches the heights of the First Class Scout.

A boy becomes a Tenderfoot when he knows the history of the United States flag and the customary forms of respect due it; when he knows the Scout Laws, sign, salute, and significance of the Boy Scout badge, and can tie quickly and efficiently five out of nine standard knots and when and where to use each of them. Having successfully passed this test the boy takes the Scout Oath: "On my honor I will do my best to do my duty to God and my Country and to obey the Scout Laws; and to help other people at all times; to keep myself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight." He states that he will obey the Scout Laws, which are twelve in number. He must be trustworthy, loyal, helpful, friendly, courteous, kind, obedient, cheerful, thrifty, brave, clean and reverent.

The second and first class requirements and where to join will be given in the next issue.

CHESTER M. SMITH.

LUNCHEON AND WHIST

Mrs. I. Roberts, of Winchester street, entertained a group of friends at a luncheon and whist on Thursday afternoon of last week. The guests included Mrs. H. Stang, Mrs. H. Grantham, Mrs. A. Yates, Mrs. J. Swan, Mrs. Joy, Mrs. White, Mrs. C. Grantham and daughter, Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. McNally, Mrs. MacCarthy, and Mrs. E. C. Boyle and son Edward.

LEGION MEMBERS ATTEND SMOKER

Some twenty odd Daly City Legionaires attended the smoker given by San Francisco Post No. 1, at the Civic Auditorium, on Thursday evening of last week. Standing room was at a premium, but the boys managed to find points of vantage and witnessed one of the snappiest programs it has been their lot to see since the days when they themselves were snapping into it. Speeches were abolished for the evening, and the vaudeville stunts put on were of the highest order. Walter Beban and his band furnished most of the musical atmosphere. The affair lasted until midnight, and it is a safe bet that next year larger quarters will be needed to accommodate the throng.

A delightful luncheon was given last Monday at the Hotel Mark Hopkins, San Francisco, in honor of Mrs. Robert Lincoln Hoyal, national president of the American Legion Auxiliary, who is visiting San Francisco while on a three months tour of the Auxiliary Posts in thirty-nine states.

Mrs. Hoyal gave a very interesting talk and explained that the work of the Auxiliary is even more important now, thirteen years after the war, than ever before.

Those representing Daly City Unit No. 410 at this affair were Catharina Foreman, Eloise Harrison, Clotilde January, Louise Canine and Anna Dannenberg.

Don't overlook the date! Friday, June 5, is the next regular meeting night of Daly City Post, and as there will have been quite a lapse between meetings, there will be plenty for discussion.

Private J. P. Jay marched up to his Colonel and saluted:

"I would like a leave of absence, sir."

"What for?" queried the officer.

"My wife wants me to help her move, sir."

"I don't like to refuse you," said the Colonel, "but I've just received a letter from your wife saying she does not want you to come home because you're more bother than help."

The soldier saluted and turned to go. At the door he stopped and remarked: "Colonel, there are two persons in this regiment who handle the truth loosely, and I'm one of them. I'm not married."

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER TENDERED MISS M. FIELDS

Miss Minola Fields, of Parkview avenue, was the guest of honor last Saturday evening at a miscellaneous shower given by Mr. and Mrs. E. Gray at their home on Vista avenue. A delightful evening was spent playing games and dancing, after which dainty refreshments were served. The dining room and table were prettily decorated in pink and white flowers and crepe paper. Miss Fields will become the bride of William McGee on Saturday evening, June 6. Those present were Miss Minola Fields, Miss Mary Kennedy, Miss Dina Marotta, Miss Vera Conci, Miss Dellar Laskey, Miss Myrtle Augustien, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Conci, Mr. and Mrs. A. Vigert, Mr. and Mrs. G. Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. E. Sumner, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Cottrell and daughter Joyce, Mrs. D. Tomlin and daughter Doreene, Mr. and Mrs. E. Gray, Mr. and Mrs. F. Michael, Mr. and Mrs. William Burdick, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Fields, Mr. W. Malakowski, and Wm. McGee.

LADIES' HOME CLUB LAST MEET

The members of the Ladies' Home Club and their friends spent a very pleasant day last Tuesday with Mrs. Lillian Landini at her lovely home on Winchester street. After a very enjoyable game of cards, refreshments were served. Those enjoying Mrs. Landini's hospitality were Mrs. Mary May, Mrs. Julia Green, Mrs. Annie Harrison, Mrs. Nellie Wight, Mrs. Anne Owens, Mrs. Fredicka Volkmann, Mrs. Reta Wright, Mrs. Jane Sheehan, Mrs. Katie Wight, Mrs. Camille Benassini, Mrs. Christine Clay. The club, one of the federated clubs of San Mateo county, will be in session on tthe second Tuesday in September, with Mrs. Landini presiding, in their club house on Werner avenue, Daly City.

P. T. A. LADIES GIVEN LESSONS IN THE MAKING OF SALADS

Last Friday, May 22, members of the Woodrow Wilson-Vista Grande Parent-Teachers' Association met in the cooking room of the Woodrow Wilson school, where Mrs. Maude Wilkins, demonstrator of Wesson oil, was busy making salads. The ladies present learned many new ways of making salads, and the proper dressing for each salad was stressed. Those present were Mesdames Eva Page, Dougherty, Forrest, Foreman, Nelson, Thomey, Hawley, Secor, Talmadge, Moos, Hutchins, Larsen Geldhof and Hanselman.

JEFFERSON UNION HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

On next Wednesday evening at 8:15 graduation exercises of the Jefferson Union high school will take place in the auditorium of the high school in Daly City. There are sixty-one members in the class of '31—the largest graduating class in the history of Jefferson. Usually more girls than boys are found in high school graduating classes. But in Jefferson this year it is different. The class of '31 has thirty-six boys and only twenty-five girls—or three boys for every two girls.

Two hundred seats will be reserved until 8:10 o'clock for the parents and invited guests of the graduates. After that time all vacant seats will be open to the general public. Doors will be open at 7:30 P. M.

Following is the official program for the occasion:

Entrance of Graduates—March by J. U. H. S. Band. Director—Mr. Harry Waters.

Invocation—Rev. James P. Donohoe.

Welcoming Address — William Jaques, President of Senior Class.

The Progress of Aviation—Colin Bennett.

Soprano Solos—a. "The Enchanted Glade," Lois Baker; b. "Paradise," Fritz Kreisler—Miss Helen Burfield. Saima Bloomquist, accompanist.

Modern Trend of High School Education—Frances Poket.

Soprano Solos—a. "Dawn," Curran; b. "The Kerry Dance," Molloy—Miss Beauel Gibbins. Miss Helen Burfield, accompanist.

Modern Explorations — Marshall Gattey.

Presentation of Class—Mr. James Ferguson, Principal.

Conferring of Diplomas—Mr. Truman Bentley, Mrs. Stella Jensen.

Benediction—Rev. John Falconer.

Members of Jefferson Union high school will act as ushers.

The Jefferson golf team, composed of Dan Silvestri, Pete Pastorino, Jim Kennedy and Roland Petrocchi, placed second in a golf tournament at the Hillview country club in San Jose, last Saturday. The tourney included golfers from all the peninsula high schools and was won by the San Jose quartet, with a low gross of 337. Jefferson was second with 340, three points out of first place. Dan Silvestri, Jefferson kingpin, shot a 72, one over par, for the lowest score of the day. His nearest competitor was Edwards of San Jose, with a 78.

The Junior-Senior party at the high schoool on Wednesday evening was a great success. Over a hundred and fifty were present. The program started with an elaborate assortment of ice cream, cake, sandwiches, coffee, and all the trimmings. Dorothy Riddell sang two solos. Marshall Gattey and Maxine Slaght, put on a humorous skit, and the Senior boys sang two or three college songs. Billy Jaques acted as toastmaster and Bobby Irons as yell leader. The faculty was represented by Miss Potter, Miss Robinson, Miss Holtz, Coach Biaggini, Mr. Hackley, and Mr. Ferguson. The students danced until 10:45.

At the meeting of the Board of Education on last Tuesday evening it was decided to extend the counter in the library so as to make available more shelf room for books of reference. The addition will be made during the summer vacation, under the supervision of Miss Gibbins, the librarian.

At the last meeting of the executive committee of the student body authorization was given for the cleaning and polishing of the auditorium floor, to be paid for out of student body funds. The work was completed in time for the Junior-Senior party on Wednesday evening.

POLLY ANN SMART SHOP MAKES HIT WITH LADIES

The Polly Ann Shop, in the Daly City Theatre building on Mission street, gave a delightful afternoon tea in the store a week ago Saturday, from 3 to 5 P. M., with Miss M. Adams as hostess. Tea was poured by Mrs. E. W. Carlson, of 286 Peoria street. Ladies from Burlingame, San Mateo, Daly City and San Francisco attended the affair, and departed declaring they had spent a most enjoyable afternoon.

ENJOYABLE SURPRISE PARTY

A large group of friends motored to South San Francisco last Saturday evening to attend a surprise party given in honor of Mal Tacchi at his home on Miller avenue. The evening was spent in dancing and playing games and at midnight a tempting supper was served to fifty. Those from Daly City who enjoyed the affair were Mr. and Mrs. R. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. W. Stein, Mr. and Mrs. R. Foppiano, Mr. and Mrs. E. Cuneo, Mr. and Mrs. E. Barazota, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Holmberg, Mrs. Ed Quinn, Miss Flora Regan and Buster Foppiano.

DALY CITY NOTES

Mrs. L. L. Baggs, of Hanover street, greatly enjoyed a deep sea fishing trip last Saturday.

Miss Drusilla Felsch was a dinner guest of Miss Claire Hansen, of Acton street, last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Sadler and family, of Risel street, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Guy L. Roberts, of San Bruno, last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Sadler, of Risel street, entertained at dinner last Tuesday evening, their guests being three Mormon missionaries, Elders Walker, Turner and Gardner.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Evans, of Winchester street, had as their dinner guests last Sunday Mr. and Mrs. V. J. Evans and daughter Dolly and Mr. A. W. Hanson, of San Francisco, Mr. Wm. Irwin, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Felsh and son, George, Jr., and daughter June.

The officers and members of El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, Native Daughters of the Golden West, wish to thank all who helped in any way towards the success of their recent whist and dance, one of the most successful, financially and socially, ever sponsored by El Carmelo Parlor. Chairlady Margaret Steele and her splendid committee are to be congratulated upon the success of the party.

Mrs. B. Cinnamond, of Oakland, was hostess on Thursday of last week at luncheon and cards. The guests learned that the next day would be Mrs. Cinnamond's birthday, and surprised her with a handkerchief shower. A delightful day was spent by all. The invited guests were Mesdames M. White, E. Twesten, D. Putney, and H. Cliver, of Daly City, and R. Power, J. Sweeney, L. Light, V. Peterson and J. Jorgensen, of San Francisco.

Little Louis Rossi, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Rossi, of Risel street, was the victim of curiosity on Wednesday of last week, when he managed in some way to explore the family washing machine and was unfortunate enough to run his arm through the wringer. Before his mother could rescue him, his arm had become wedged in the wringer, up to his shoulder. He was taken to the Emergency hospital, where the injured shoulder, chest and arm of the little fellow was swathed in bandages. At present writing Louis is up and around, but is still wearing the bandages and has a very sore hand.

MERCHANTS TO PLAY THE LOMITA FIREMEN

The Daly City Merchants will play the final encounter of a two game baseball series with the Lomita Park outfit, next Sunday at Lomita Park diamond. The time is set for 12 o'clock noon.

This contest promises to be as hard fought and exciting a game as the Merchants have indulged in so far this season. The Lomita Park nine have already taken them into camp 8-6 in a ten inning thriller this season. This affair was the Merchants' third game of the season and they were just beginning to strengthen themselves. Now the Merchants have nearly reached their full strength; they have improved in many departments of play, and hope to take the opposing team down the line in a convincing fashion. However, the firemen have a fast aggregation, with a dangerous battery and a very strong infield. In their last game with the Merchants they made no errors, and the contest should be on an even basis.

Toole or Mitchell will probably take up the pitching chores for the Merchants. Manager Ed Cavagnaro expects to have Gene Keagle, a local twirler, back in the line-up for the Merchants. Keagle has already a good reputation in bush league baseball and should turn in a few victories in the future, but is not expected for next Sunday's game.

POLICE DOG SAVES FAMILY WHEN FIRE BREAKS OUT

The news comes from Redwood City that, awakened by the barking of their police dog early Tuesday morning, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Gray and their 6-year-old daughter found their home in flames.

Gray, who is cashier of the Palo Alto branch of the Bank of America, phoned the Redwood City fire department. The department said they could not answer as the Gray home, on Francis lake, was just beyond the city limits. In desperation Mrs. Gray telephoned County Fire Warden Bert Werder. Werder and his son, Edward, answered the alarm in a truck used to fight forest fires. The fire was soon brought under control and damage was estimated at $1,000.

In a recent intercollegiate boxing tourney, Herbert Fulmer, 18 years old, of St. Louis donned boxing gloves for the first time and won the intercollegiate title in the lightweight division.

Safety movements are having a good effect. We read that only one person was injured while playing ping pong last year.

BOYS AND GIRLS

Kermit Peter Hayford, 9-year-old youth of Rochester, N. Y., is said to be the youngest boy in the country to take a radio test.

In a year, Jerry Gregs, of Marshalltown, Iowa, who is only three years old, has memorized 150 nursery rhymes.

Barbara Ann Smith, 3, af Sedalia, Mo., has already crossed the Atlantic three times, the Pacific twice, the Indian ocean three times, and has been around the world twice.

Russell Keith, 13, of Peru, Indiana, has attended school only six years but is ready to graduate from high school.

Vittorio Mussolino, 14-year-old son of the Italian premier, is editor of his high school magazine and displays rare newspaper ability.

Not to be outdone by a group of boys enrolled in a cooking class, twenty-two girls at Woodrow Wilson Junior high school in Des Moines, Ia., enrolled in a class in mechanics.

Though only 16, Katherine Applebee has been chosen master of Pink Granite Grange and is believed to be the youngest head of such a lodge in New England.

Robert Buck, 17, set a junior flying record when he made the round trip from Roosevelt Field, L. I., to Havana, Cuba, in the estimated time of 13 hours and 5 minutes.

Stella Walsh, of Cleveland, set a new world's record of 7 3-10 seconds in winning the 60-yard dash at the annual Millrose games in New York.

Jimmy Reid, of Springfield, Pa., who is only three years old, is said to be the youngest trap drummer in the world.

Tom Nobles, of Hot Springs, Ark., has realized his ambition, and is the nation's youngest radio announcer from a large station.

Little 9-year-old Mary Taylor has demonstrated unusual versatility as a fancy diver and skater for the Pasadena Athletic Club.

Ethel Hornig, 16-year-old high school student of Syracuse, N. Y., is said to be the first American girl to hold the paradox rank of "boy scout girl."

Margaret Wood, first co-ed to enter Mississippi A. & M. College since 1912, has been made honorary Colonel of the student cadet corps.

THIRTY-SECOND ANNUAL P. T. A. CONVENTION

The thirty-second annual convention of the California Congress of Parents and Teachers held their opening banquet in the Fairmont Hotel, which was well attended by presidents and delegates from all over California. The following splendid program was thoroughly enjoyed:

Presiding, Mrs. Roy A. Pratt, president Second district, California Congress of Perents and Teachers.

Invocation, Mrs. Dana Thomas, State Chairman of Spiritual Training.

Toastmaster Dr. Joseph Marr Gwinn, superintendent San Francisco public schools and president California Teachers' Association.

Music, "Calm as the Night," and "To Me Thou Art a Flower," by Mrs. Edward I. Titlow, Soprano.

Introduction of honor guests.

Address of Welcome: Dr. Robert Eccles Swain, acting president Stanford University; Angelo J. Rossi, mayor of San Francisco; George J. Presley, San Francisco Chamber of Commerce.

Response—Mrs. A. W. Price, president California Congress of Parents and Teachers; Mrs. Hugh Bradford, president National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Music, "O Let Me Put Thy Cheek to Mine" and "O Happy Day, O Day So Dear," Mrs. Edward I. Titlow, Soprano.

Address, "Psychology and Character," Dr. Noel Keys, Associate Professor of Education, University of California, Berkeley.

Reception in Gold ballroom.

Among those who attended this opening session dinner were Mrs. J. V. Jordan, president of Crocker P. T. A., Mrs. E. C. Boyle, president of General Pershing P. T. A., Mrs. M. Pechenino, of Brunswick street, parliamentarian of General Pershing P. T. A., and Mrs. William Bolger.

EXTRA WEEK FOR "STREET SCENE" AT GEARY THEATRE

Sid Grauman's production of "Street Scene" has proven one of the biggest stage hits to have played San Francisco in the past two seasons. Originally booked for two weeks, the piece now has been held for a third. The third and last week begins on Monday night, June 1, and will close on Saturday, June 6. There is no chance of holding it any longer, as Mrs. Leslie Carter in "The Shanghai Gesture" is definitely slated to open at the Geary on June 8.

The action of "Street Scene" takes place in New York City. Two hours spent in witching the ebb and flow of this particular strata of New York City life is well worth the time spent. It is entertainment of the highest order, beautifully acted and directed.

Grauman brought the original cast from New York City, the same that thrilled that city for two years. Not only was the cast brought here, but Mr. Grauman had Elmer Rice, the author, come to supervise its presentation in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

The cast of seventy-five includes many notable Broadway actors.

SAN FRANCISCO FINDS JAIL SITE NEARER CITY

San Francisco newspapers announce that discovery of a new tract which would save more than half the proposed cost of the site for the new county jail was revealed Monday by members of the joint buildings and lands and police committees of the Board of Supervisors.

The property is situated north of San Anderas lake, three miles from the county line, and apparently meets all requirements for the jail, it was indicated by Supervisors Warren Shannon, chairman, and Thomas P. Garrity.

It could probably be acquired for $40,000 or less, according to Joseph J. Phillips, the city's real estate expert.

Sheriff William J. Fitzgerald, as well as the committeemen, had figured that a site would use up nearly $100,000 of the $850,000 bond issue which was approved by the voters last November.

Another tour of sites will be made today by the committee. Besides six ranches in the vicinity of Half Moon Bay and the newest prospective location, the city officials will inspect 100 acres bordering McLaren Park and Fort Funston.

SCHOOL BASEBALL TEAMS HAVE INTERESTING CONTEST

The recent baseball game between Woodrow Wilson and Jefferson school teams resulted in a victory for the Woodrow Wilson team. The lineup follows:

Woodrow Wilson	AB.	H.	R.
Guisti, c	4	1	1
Perrada, p	3	0	2
Christian, 1b	2	0	2

Suppose . . . you couldn't get gasoline Anywhere

IMAGINE: Every motor vehicle in California stopped dead for want of fuel.

It would not happen, of course. But it does illustrate how everyone depends on gasoline. California motorists, in 1930, used one billion, three hundred million gallons.

In production, refining and distribution, the petroleum industry employs an estimated 300,000 people throughout the state. Such widespread operations enable the major oil companies to make extensive use of the statewide service of this Bank.

7 of the 8 LARGEST OIL COMPANIES in California are served by Bank of America

With 200 separate Bank of America accounts in 147 communities, these companies collect thousands of small checks quickly; transfer funds with minimum delay and expense; obtain accurate reports and appraisals from widely-separated localities; simplify their accounting and effect other economies which mean improved service to motorists.

The Bank also serves approximately 75,000 individual depositors in the industry—any one of whom may be suddenly transferred to another territory. In this event, the Bank will promptly forward funds — and even valuables in safe deposit — to any branch; and with a letter of introduction, the customer quickly feels at home.

An attachment has been invented that holds a screw on the blade of a screw-driver until it is started in wood.

THE GOOD ROADS MOVEMENT

Three main causes are advancing the secondary road movement: the need for relieving congestion on main highways, the efforts being made in all states to reduce taxes and keep down governmenntal expense, and—of perhaps greater importance—the necessity of giving farmers year-round contacts with markets and the outside world.

Good secondary roads are a perennial attraction to tourists who welcome the opportunity to see the "back country" that main highways often avoid. They bring business to small towns and rural and semi-rural areas that would otherwise go principally to the larger cities. It has been found that the average cost of a good, year-round secondary road, made waterproof, dustless and mudless by use of asphalts or road oils, and suitable for a fair amount of traffic, is but $4,000 a mile—about one-eighth the cost of standard hard paving. Upkeep expense is likewise low and such roads may be adapted to their territories by using local materials as the base.

From the standpoint of the farmer, good roads are indispensable. They means an end to the time when he stayed home in the bad weather, or started for town and got mired. They remove the obstacles in the way of receiving medical attention and fire fighting facilities, of sending his children to and from school. They are the best investment the states have ever made in behalf of agriculture and the small town.

It is no wonder that the good roads movement is making great progress even in a time when "money is tight." The public is learning that tax money invested in good roads is one of the few forms of public expenditures for which the people get more in return than they pay out.

MEMORIAL DAY

The beautiful custom of setting aside one day in the year for the decoration of soldiers' graves is said to have originated in Petersburg, Virginia, where Memorial Day was observed for the first time on June 9, 1865, in honor of Confederate soldiers who were killed in battle there just one year before.

In 1868 the wife of General John A. Logan, then Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, happened to be in Petersburg on its Memorial Day, and was so impressed with the tributes of flowers and flags with which the graves were decorated that she suggested to the General that this be made a national custom. General Logan accordingly issued an order to the G. A. R., "that every Post of the Grand Army should hold suitable exercises and decorate the graves of their dead comrades with flowers," on May 30 of each year.

The idea spread throughout the South also, and Confederate Memorial Day is observed in various states on the following dates: April 26 in Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi and Florida; May 10 in North and South Carolina; the second Friday in May in Tennessee, and June 3 in Louisiana. In the South the national Memorial day of May 30 is more generally observed since the World war, the exercises being conducted by the American Legion.

At the National cemetery of Arlington, near Washington the grave of America's Unknown Soldier is decorated with special ceremonies, usually participated in by the President and other high officials, on Memorial Day.

It is highly fitting that all citizens should join in the observance of this most beautiful and sacred of our national holidays.

ALBERT A. MICHELSON

In the death of Albert A. Michelson this month the world lost one of the greatest scientists of this or any other generation. He was the first to accurately measure the speed of light, by which measurement of the distances of stars was made possible.

In the departments of physics he attained practically every honor it was in the power of his fellow scientists to bestow, including numerous medals and other distinctions conferred by learned societies in many countries.

Born in Germany in 1852, he came to America with his parents in his youth and settled in Nevada. He was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1873, but left the naval service in 1880 to puruse his studies in Europe. He was professor and head of the physics department of the University of Chicago from 1892 to 1929. In 1907 he was awarded the Nobel prize in physics. He made many astounding discoveries in the realm of light and electricity, besides inventing and improving some of the most intricate apparatus employed in the investigation of nature's secrets.

He was truly an intellectual giant, yet, as is characteristic of real greatness he was one of the most modest of men. On the roll of scientists of distinguished achievement, the name of Albert A. Michelson will forever occupy a high place.

NORRIS OF NEBRASKA

Charles S. Ryckman, editor of the Fremont (Nebraska) Tribune, was recently awarded the coveted Pulitzer prize for the best editorial of 1930. It was entitled "The Gentleman from Nebraska," and sought to explain why the people of that state continue to re-elect George W. Norris to the Senate, although they have little regard for his statesmanship.

According to Ryckman, they do it because Norris gives the state a lot of publicity through his innumerable attacks on this and that, which keeps his name and that of Nebraska in the limelight, besides gratifying Nebraska's grouch against the East.

Some sentences from the editorial follow:

"By making himself objectionable to eastern interests of every kind, he has afforded Nebraskans a chance to vent their wrath."

"And yet, George Norris is not a political power in Nebraska. The people of other states believe he is revered as an idol in his own state. As a matter of fact, he is probably held in lower esteem in Nebraska than in any other state in the Union. His endorsement of another candidate is of no real value."

"The people of Nebraska would not let him tell them how to elect a dog catcher in the smallest village in the state, but they have been sending him to the Senate so long it is a habit."

"The summary of it all is that Nebraska derives a great deal of pleasure out of shoving George Norris down the great American throat."

"Nebraska gets the same amusement out of his antics that a small boy gets out of sicking a dog on an alley cat."

HARDY NEW ANIMALS

There appears to be no limit to the ambition of scientists, and the amazing thing is that their ambitions are generally fulfilled in actual results. An instance is the development of a superior type of cow, able to withstand the rigors of far northern climates such as that of Alaska.

Concerning this development, Dr. Evans of the Department of Agriculture, recently gave an interesting statement. Under the supervision of the department, experimental crossing of Galloway cows with the hardy Asiatic yak has produced an animal capable of subsisting on the scanty vegetation of the far north, while preserving desirable meat and milk producing qualities.

Another venture was the crossing of American cows with the Brahman zebu of the Far East, which produced an animal especially fitted to thrive in the hot, dry climates of the Southwestern states. This animal is also able to resist tick infection, which is very detrimental to ordinary cattle in those regions.

All this may not be exactly evolution, but it is something closely akin to it.

LESS WORK FOR WOMEN

Woman's work is divided up so thoroughly and effectively among machines that there is little left for the efforts of even the most ingenious inventor.

A recent issue of the Brooklyn Eagle says that with so much work of the world done by electricity it was high time the kitchen should receive its share of equipment necessary to make it as efficient as the most up-to-date manufacturing plant.

"An electrotable, the newest kitchen assistant, will be as indispensable to the housewife as her vacuum cleaner," says the New York writer. "In its cabinet are attachments to take the drudgery out of food preparation. Meat chopper, fruit juice reamer, grater and shredder devices, bowls and beaters of various sorts are at hand to work at the turn of a switch. There are places to plug in the waffle iron, percolator, egg cooker, and so on, part of every well-equipped household."

Discussing the invention, the Detroit Times says: "If some day you should find at your back door a maid who said, 'Madam, I want to work for you the rest of my life; I will never need food or a day off, always be available to work at any hour,' what would you say?" and leaves the answer to the housewife's imagination.

Lest we be accused of membership in the "Tall Story Club," we hasten to explain that this item is vouched for by the Associated Press: Toots Champ, 60-year-old negro crap shooter of Bartlesville, Oklahoma, threw a four as his point. "I never make a four, and if I did I expect I'd drop dead," he said as he rolled the bones. Two deuces turned up, making his four. As he reached for the stake, Toots acutally dropped dead.

William H. Gannett, a retired publisher of Augusta, Maine, is a victim of the irony of fate, "or sump'n," as Andy would say. After traveling for thousands of miles by airplane without an accident, he slipped on loose gravel while walking along the street and suffered a fractured hip.

A high speed telegraph printer using Japanese ideographs has been invented which is much more complicated than machines using European characters.

MAYORS VISIT FRANCE

In token of Franco-American friendship, the mayors of thirty-six American cities have been invited by France to be its guests this month on the occasion of the Colonial Exposition at Paris. The thirty-six mayors are heads of as many cities which welcomed Diuedonne Costes and Maurice Bellonte last year when the latter made their good-will tour of America, after achieving the first non-stop flight from Paris to New York.

The mayors who arranged to make the trip sailed from New York on May 13 aboard the Ile de France, of the French Line, with their wives, who also are invited. The party will return five weeks later on the same liner. All expenses to and from Paris and in travelling in France will be paid by the French authorities.

During the two days in New York before sailing, the mayors and their wives attended a series of entertainments and social events. In Paris, the Municipal Council will be their host. They will meet the President of the Republic and will be taken on a two weeks tour of France after visiting the Colonial Exposition.

SAVINGS PROTECTED

From Chicago comes news of success in the co-operation of small investors throughout the United States, in an interesting method to safeguard their interests. Several thousands who held bonds of George M. Forman & Co., internationally known real estate mortgage loan institution, turned them in for bonds and shares of the George M. Forman Realty Trust, of Chicago. This was organized to safeguard the original investments when the depression made it impossible to continue paying interest on the bonds.

Already four large buildings have been brought out of receivership by the new plan worked out by well-known financiers and investment banking authorities under C. S. Tuttle, of Chicago, vice-president of the Central Trust Company of Illinois.

Little investors who feared they would lose all but a small fraction of their funds have been reassured by the proposal to conserve the value of the bonds. Receiverships and foreclosures have been prevented. Financial authorities are hailing the method as the practical, safe solution of such difficulties in the real estate field.

If epithets uttered by an opponent are to be considered boosts, as some profess to believe, the radical group in the United States Senate got a fine send-off at the hands of Lieutenant-Governor Williams of Nebraska recently He referred to Senators La-Follette, Norris, Borah and Brookhart as "the most accomplished hell-raisers the world has ever seen."

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

April 15, 1931.

Commander-in-Chief,
Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States,
Washington, D.C.

My dear Commander:

I warmly commend the annual "Buddy Poppy" Campaign which is conducted under the auspices of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States as a means of general civilian contribution in the relief work for disabled and needy veterans and their dependents. It not only gives employment to disabled veterans, but also it aids in the maintenance of a National Home for Widows and Orphans of deceased veterans in Eaton Rapids, Michigan.

Yours faithfully,
Herbert Hoover

Urbano Granucci, Joseph Belli, Joseph Altieri and John Soldavini, co-partners doing business under the firm name and style of M. Belli & Company, Plaintiffs, vs. William Passaglia, also known as Wm. Passaglia, and Emma Passaglia, his wife, Defendants.

Under and by virtue of an execution issued out of the Municipal Court of the City and County of San Francisco, State of California, on the 6th day of May, 1931, in the above entitled action, wherein Urbano Granucci, Joseph Belli, Joseph Altieri and John Soldavini, co-partners doing business under the firm name and style of M. Belli & Company, the above named plaintiffs, recovered a judgment against William Passaglia, also known as Wm. Passaglia, and Emma Passaglia, his wife, the above named defendants, on the 7th day of April, 1931, for the sum of $175.00 damages, $6.04 interest, $8.50 costs, and $30.00 attorney fees, as appears to us of record;

AND, WHEREAS, the judgment roll in the action in which said judgment was entered is filed in the Clerk's office of said City and County of San Francisco, State of California, and the said judgment was entered in the Minute Book of said Court at Volume Number 5 thereof, at page 208, on the 7th day of April, 1931;

AND the sum of $175.00 damages, $6.05 interest, $8.50 costs and $30.00 attorney fees, with interest as provided by law, is now (at the date of this writ) actually due on said judgment;

I am commanded to sell all those certain lots, pieces or parcels of land situate and being in the First Township of the County of San Mateo, State of California, and more particularly described as follows, to-wit:

Lots 4 and 8 in Block 31, as the same is designated on the map entitled, "Map of the lands of the Abbey Homestead Association," filed in the office of the Recorder of San Mateo County, State of California, on January 2nd, 1872, and copied into Volume 1 of Maps at page 14.

Public notice is hereby given that on Tuesday, the 9th day of June, 1931, at the hour of 10:00 o'clock A. M. of that day, at the front entrance of the County Court House in the City of Redwood City, State of California, I will sell all the right, title and interest of William Passaglia, also known as Wm. Passaglia, and Emma Passaglia, his wife, the above named defendants, in and to the above described real property, at public auction, for cash in lawful money of the United States of America, to the highest and best bidder, to satisfy said judgment and all costs.

Dated: Redwood City, May 13th, 1931.

THE STORY

Harold Norman Atridge, twenty-four, bank clerk, lives with his great-aunt Matilda.

He never succeeded in making friends at school. Shyness had something to do with this; partly it was due to the fact that Harold was ignorant of the preliminary moves necessary to friendship; but largely it was due to the fact that a completely friendless childhood had left Harold self-contained and self-sufficient, so that necessity did not force him into friendship, although even Harold was, on bitter, bewildered occasions, conscious of his loneliness and unhappiness.

Self-contained and self-sufficient, Harold crept into an inner life of his own, like a tortoise into its shell, seeking protection both from the searching prods of Miss Epping and the chilling blasts of the riotous world. It was an inner life in which everything was possible to Harold Norman Atridge. There little, vague, unacknowledged ambitions came to entire fruition. But since the greater part of Harold's reading had consisted of school textbooks, and since Harold had found history the most readable school books, there was generally decidedly historical flavor about Harold's imaginings. And with a few centuries between himself and a censorious modern generation Harold could give himself free rein, and uncomprehendingly compensate himself for the violence with which he had been sat on all his small life.

In time Miss Epping grew distrustful of these historical researches of his. The avidity with which he devoured volumes of history seemed to show almost necessarily that there was good reason for her to check him. Yet she did not; although she never admitted to herself that she was puzzled or that she was afraid to put her power to the test, she could not help realizing that Harold was older.

With the war came the beginning of the school Officers' Training corps, and for Harold, by reason of his scholarship, membership was compulsory. For two years he served as a cadet in the junior company, and in 1916, on reaching the age of fourteen, he rose to the real Officers' Training corps. Some of the results were surprising.

Firstly came the discovery that there was something he was superlatively good at—rifle shooting. "Possibles" came to Harold naturally. It may have been because of this that Harold's unvoiced opinion of himself on the occasions when circumstances forced him to see himself clearly rose from a minus quantity to something almost over zero.

And secondly there was the great question of camp. Camp was not really compulsory. It was only the next best thing to it (and more so in some ways)—the thing which was "done." The school in a wave of militaristic patriotism decided that only an outsider would stay away from camp. Usually it was when the school decided that way that Miss Epping decided the other—which hardly made for Harold's popularity. But on this occasion, miraculously, Miss Epping agreed. She approved of the war, in the same way as she approved of God and the royal family, and she decided that Harold's going to the corps camp would help England to win the war.

Thus it happened that for the first time since he was four Harold slept under a roof which Great-aunt Matilda Epping did not share. And it was not really a roof, either, but a canvas hut into which were crammed thirteen other thirteen-year-old cadets. For a blissful fortnight Harold was removed from his great-aunt's anxious care. Yet even here his cursed personal efficiency and habitual retirement sundered him from his fellows. His buttons were always polished, and his neck was always clean, and the folding of his blankets into the form insisted upon by authority came as naturally to him as swimming to a duckling. Harold found himself spurned by his fellows as one amenable to authority, and ignored by authority through his habitual horror of attracting attention.

Nevertheless, he enjoyed camp. He enjoyed being away from his great-aunt. A liking for solitude may be an acquired taste, but Harold acquired it. At camp, when parades were over, Harold was free for the first time in his life. He could lounge in his tent or go for solitary walks, and he could read, read, read, without once being asked what he was reading.

In 1917, when Harold was just fifteen, fate dealt a cruel blow at Great-aunt Matilda. Those in authority over her (to Harold even now it was inconceivable that there should be any authority over her) made the amazing discovery that she was sixty-eight and still teaching. Regulations compelled retirement at sixty-five. It was in vain that she pointed out scornfully to English officialdom that she was far more fitted for teaching than any of the scatter-brained women and medical rejects who composed her staff. Miss Epping must retire, and Miss Epping retired, worsted for the first time in an active life.

And for the first time in her life she called Harold into consultation. Miss Epping's retiring pension was on a scale devised in 1850, which took it for granted that maiden ladies could live on fifty-five pounds a year, and which entirely left out of account the possibility of fifteen-year-old great-nephews. Most of her small savings were sunk in an annuity of fifteen pounds per year. Harold must begin to think about earning his living. Not immediately, but quite soon.

It was the first time Harold had ever thought about his future; up till then he had taken it for granted that it would be arranged for him, as everything else had been (and it would have been, too, had Miss Epping continued teaching). Besides, the war seemed such a permanency now that Harold had assumed that at the age of eighteen he would be provided with all the employment he could cope with by a man-hungry government.

Harold consulted his school principal. Jobs? Oh yes, there were jobs in hundreds to be had for the asking by anyone who could read and write; firms whose businesses were experiencing the height of the war-time boom and whose staffs were drained away by conscription were only too anxious to give employment. But—would it not be better if Atridge were to wait a little? In a year's time he would be taking matriculation, and with that certificate in his pocket the future would be a great deal more assured. The war would not last forever, you know. For Harold to leave school now would be to stunt his future all the rest of his life. Just one more year at school—one little year, and Harold would have the world at his feet; matriculation was the key to all the professions and to nearly every business.

Miss Epping listened and was moved. Scholastic achievement was something of a fetish to her. She promised Harold's principal that Harold should have another thirteen months at school.

Miss Epping made this promise in the full and certain knowledge that the prices of the nearly unobtainable necessities of life were soaring unreachably, that she had two people to house and clothe and feed, that she had fourteen pounds in the bank, and would in future be receiving from all sources a total income of less than six pounds a month. Miss Epping knew this, but she let it pass unremarked. As has already been said, she belonged to an older and stronger generation.

So during Harold's last year at school Miss Epping was at home. Four or five times a week she walked a long, long way, (street cars were expensive) to do her shopping in districts where prices were low and a keen mind could save pennies; sometimes she waited for hours in queues for minute amounts of "offal" or for a rabbit or for two imported eggs. There was much mending to do, as well, for Miss Epping would never tolerate a hole in her never displayed underclothing; the underclothing was wearing fast, too, for all through that last worst winter of the war Miss Epping wore double layers, because she never lighted a fire until Harold came home from school; or rather, until just before Harold came home from school, for she never let him knew that it had been unlighted all day. And in the same way she never told him that she had had no lunch—Harold lunched at school—and at teatime she displayed little appetite for the wartime bread, and of the minute supper which she served the lion's share went to Harold, without his noticing anything strange.

Let no one mortal ever dare to judge her motives. Perhaps it was only her strict sense of duty; perhaps her life's experience had convinced her that it is always the hardest course that is the right one; perhaps in her old age the diamond hard depths of her had softened with love for the boy whose upbringing she had made her strict duty.

Sell "One"

The advertising manager of a certain company was endeavoring to sell his plan to the board of directors. When he saw that it would be almost impossible to do so, he made this remark: "It is not necessary for me to go into the details of the complexities of this sound advertising plan with one member of this board, because this intelligent man understands advertising well. I would, however, like to confer with him immediately after this meeting." When the meeting was adjourned, every member remained in his seat.—American Mutual Magazine.

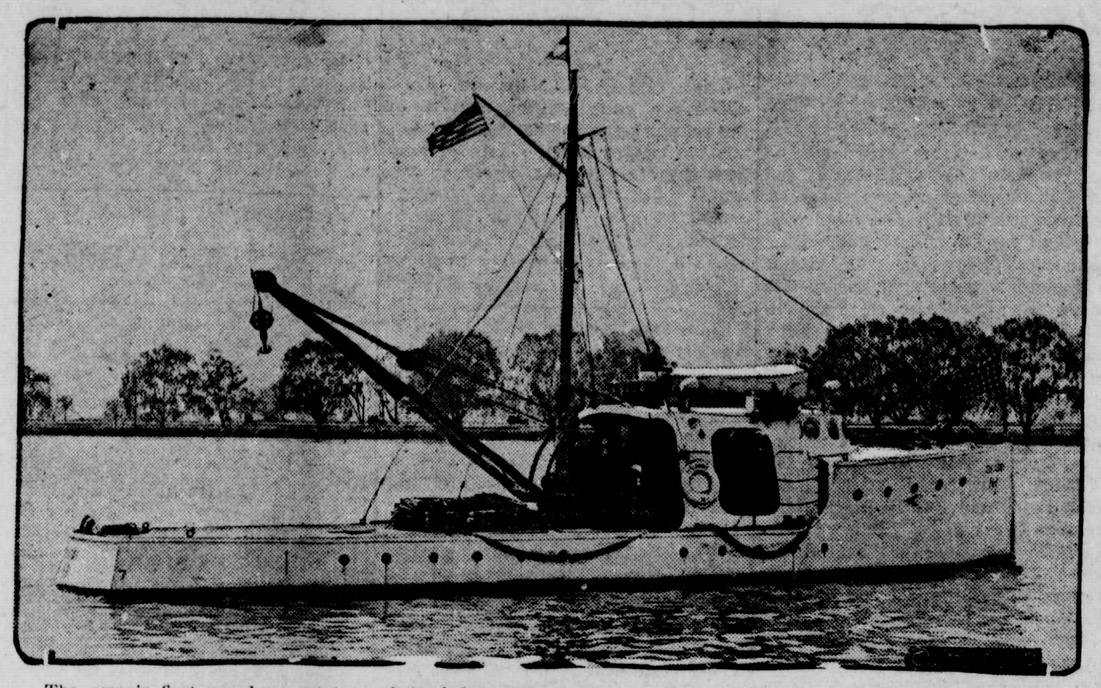
Happily Forgotten

One day Norman Hapgood met Mark Twain strolling along Fifth avenue, New York.

"How is Mrs. Clemens now?" asked Hapgood.

"Much better," he drawled. "In fact, the whole Clemens family has been so surprisingly well of late that I have begun to think that Providence has . . . forgotten us."—Kansas City Times.

Here's Army's First Seaplane Retriever



The army's first seaplane retriever, intended to act as a rescue ship to aircraft which may require assistance after alighting upon the waters, is in Washington for inspection by government officials. An odd feature of the craft is that it was constructed by welding, without the use of rivets. It has a speed of 12 knots per hour.

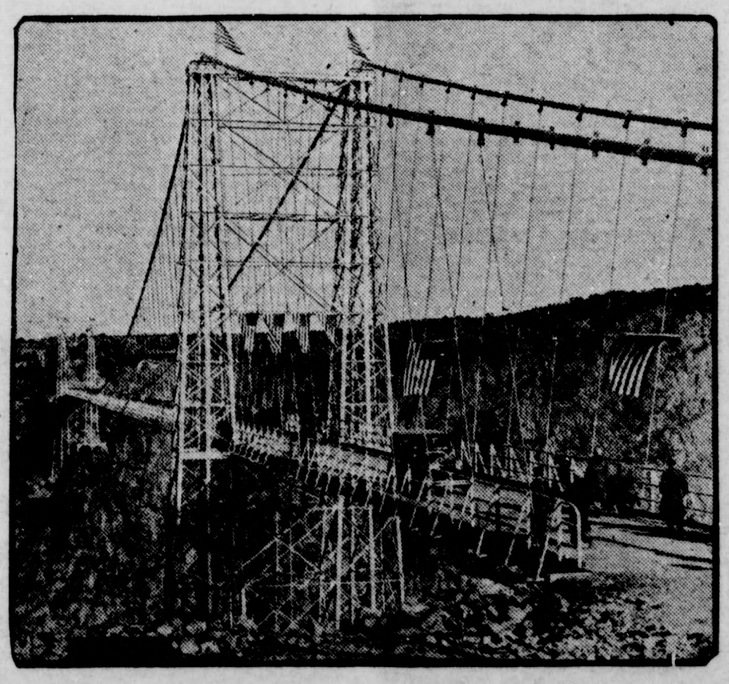
1—First of the 1931 contingent of Gold Star mothers and widows aboard the George Washington about to sail on a pilgrimage to the graves of their dead in France. 2—Mortimer L. Schiff, New York banker, who is the new president of the national council of the Boy Scouts of America. 3—New view of the interior of the Harding memorial at Marion, Ohio, which will be dedicated by President Hoover and other notables on June 16 next.

Studying Crime Scientifically

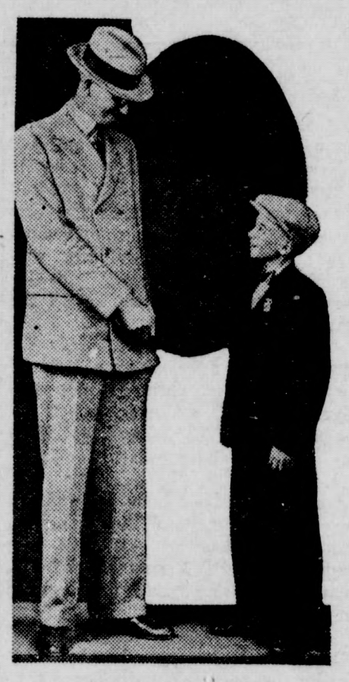
The bullet-riddled body lies on the floor. The best detectives in the country are grouped around it looking for a clew to the murder. But the victim is only a dummy and the onlookers are a group of student detectives learning how to hunt down the murderer scientifically. The scene is in a scientific crime detection laboratory which is part of a school for sleuths in Chicago.

Wonderful Bridge Open to Motorists



The new suspension bridge at the Royal Gorge of the Arkansas river, Colorado, the highest bridge in the world, is now open to motorists. It is 1,053 feet above the chasm floor, and is an approach to several of the new additions to the National Park of Colorado.

SPELLING CHAMPION



Aaron Butler, Weir, Kan., 4-foot 9-inch, thirteen-year-old winner of the statewide Capper publications spelling bee in Kansas, receives congratulations from J. M. Parks, who is 6 feet 7 inches and was director of the Kansas branch of the national spelling bee. The "long and the short" of the Kansas match will be in Washington for the national contest on May 26.

RED CROSS FOUNDER

When President Hoover opened the exercises which commemorated the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Red Cross on May 21, the last survivor of the 51 persons who signed its original charter was seated beside him. This was Mrs. Emma L. Degraw of Washington, shown above.

CALIFORNIA NEWS REVIEW

Regents of the University of California, at their May meeting at Los Angeles, approved 203 scholarships awarded to undergraduates on the Berkeley campus. The scholarships have a total value of about $68,000. Jane Elizabeth Gabbert of Riverside, received the Phoebe A. Hearst scholarship.

Assemblyman Ray Williamson's sick leave bill affecting salaries of school teachers, was signed by Governor Rolph. The measure provides that when a teacher is absent on account of illness for five months or less, no salary deduction shall be made in excess of the amount actually paid a substitute teacher.

Federal plans to station five squadrons of army bombing planes, constituting the nineteenth bombardment group at Sacramento shortly after July 1, were announced by Lieut. Gordon Saville of Mather Field. Elements of the twentieth pursuit group, at Mather Field will be transferred to Eastern fields and Hawaii, it was indicated.

The forty-ninth session of the Legislature, just concluded, cost the State of California $227,527.84, exclusive of legislative printing, according to State Controller Riley. The 1929 session, several days shorter than the recent one, cost $250,729.21. Two years ago the impeachment trial of Superior Judge Hardy of Los Angeles added to the expense.

Ed Metzger, keeper of the bears, is back on the job at Sequoia National Park and, as usual, it will take him several days to recuperate from the bears' welcome. Annually Metzger has to guard against too vigorous hugs by the bears, who rush from all directions to greet him. This year he escaped with minor scratches and a sore rib or two.

Growing of quayule for rubber is suggested as a new industry for Porterville district. This plant is being grown extensively near Salinas. Fred S. McCarger, secretary of the Salinas chamber of commerce, replying to an inquiry said he understood the company conducting the plantings near Salinas was also experimenting in this section and eventually would probably be in Porterville district.

Zoilo Ontiveros, United States Forest Service lookout who watches for fires from the summit of Mount Figueroa in the Santa Barbara National Forest in California, is stationed far from the beaten tracks, but during the past season his visitors' register showed that 417 callers came to his "crow's nest." His visitors came from as far as Alberta, Canada; Philippine Islands, Denmark, England, Hawaii; as well as from Washington, D. C.; Westfield, N. Y.; New Orleans, Boston, and Florida.

Two important decisions affecting California natural objects were announced recently by United States Geographic Board. One clears the confusion surrounding Eel river, which has forks and branches known as South Eel river, San creek, South Fork Eel river and Little Fork Eel river. The board established the name of Eel river from its source in Mendocino county through its ramifications to Humboldt bay, where it empties into the Pacific. The other change was the settling of the dispute over the spelling of "Casaic," the name of a creek, a postoffice, a railroad station and a canyon in Los Angeles county. The board held that spelling "Castac" was wrong. In so doing the board accepted the old Mexican-Indian spelling.

An onslaught against illegal signboards on California highway system has begun. Maintenance crews of the Division of Highways, numbering more than 1,000, started operations in every county of the State. A local attack on the eyesores was started on the Skyline boulevard with a crew of men under the direction of Supervisor Manuel Francis of San Mateo county. Only signs erected without the permission of landowners or placed on State land will be pulled down. A similar campaign waged in Wisconsin last year resulted in the removal of 52,000 signs. It is hoped to exceed this mark in California. The State and counties are sharing the expense of the work. About two weeks will be needed to complete the work. A. Emory Wishon, chairman of the State highways committee of the California State Chamber of Commerce, stated. Wishon said: "A great many years have passed without any attention given to the illegal signboard law. I expect that the crews in charge of these scenic obstructions to report 75,000 or 100,000 signs destroyed."

Santa Clara County growers recently rejoiced over passage of the "pest control bill," which will compel owners of abandoned orchards to clean them up, and the $20,000 appropriation for study of the pear blight. These bills were passed by the State Legislature during closing sessions.

Plans for the year's greatest Shrine gathering in the West were launched following the selection of Fresno for a joint ceremonial of six Shrine temples at a conference of potentates held at Reno.

FISH AND GAME NOTES

By J. H. NEUSTADT

Mr. D. H. Howse, manager of a Tennessee sporting goods store, is the first man to establish the practice of giving a pound of game bird seed with each box of shotgun shells sold. This is a practical way of assisting game bird life and encouraging propagation.

I hope some lover of wild life will call the attention of our friend Joe Darcy to this suggestion.

"Wild animal life of Canada has a capital valuation of one billion dollars and means a yearly business turnover to the Dominion of about forty-five million dollars. This valuation includes the fur harvest, game fish, and the manufacture of firearms and fishing tackle."

Untutored salmon are getting novel "lessons in caution" in New Brunswick, Canada, relates a bulletin of the American Game Association.

Accommodating officials, desiring to keep their tourists and their fish, too, are issuing special permits allowing anglers to fish to their hearts' content ahead of legal seasons, as long as they use the innocent barbless hook and return to the water all but one fish a day. Many favorite lakes and streams do not open until May 24.

They believe this plan will benefit all their visitors, both human and piscatorial. It will amuse early nimrods and at the same time fill the streams with fish well schooled in the virtue of wisdom.

The wise old owl is being duped—by graceful dancers. The "dancers" are stuffed pigeons, set upon coils of wire so that they sway weirdly, enticing feathered killers into the traps concealed on their backs.

Blaine Brannon, keeper of the Ogemaw game refuge near Bay City, Mich., invented the "dancing pigeons" to solve the old problem of how to trap predatory owls and hawks without endangering beneficial species, observes a bulletin of the American Game Association.

Low water in the rivers is creating a serious problem for the fish culturist this year, according to reports at the Division of Fish and Game. In many localities along the coastal streams the water is so low that the fish are unable to reach the egg collecting stations and it has been necessary to construct temporary locations farther down the river.

It has also been reported that many fish are spawning near the mouths of the rivers, and this is given as an indication of a very poor season. The fish, however, are in good condition.

Baths for little fishes have come into vogue in state fish hattcheries, as the result of a discovery by the Maine Department of Inland Fisheries and Game.

For years the worst cause of loss at the hatcheries, where many millions of fish are raised annually to restock state waters, has been a fungus growth which killed the young fish.

Through its experiments the Maine department has found that this growth can be destroyed if the fish is given acetic acid baths, Commissioner Geo. J. Stobie has informed the American Game Association.

So now each hatchery's troublesome family of millions of fish youngsters have to "wash their neck and ears" regularly, with acetic acid for soap.

Now fish, too, can go in for the latest wild life fashion of wearing metal ornaments.

Wild ducks, geese and other migratory game have long been tagged by investigators to discover the extent of their wanderings. But in the past experiments with tagging fish has proved more or leess unsuccessful, as the weight of the tags hampered the fish and usually caused injury.

A new miniature tag, however, has been designed by Dr. Carl L. Hubbs, director of the Institute for Fisheries Research of the Michigan Department of Conservation, that department has reported to the American Game Association.

The new tag will be of such constuction that it will not injure fish as small as three inches long. It can be worn on the edge of the gill, like a dainty pendant, or on the upper fin with piscatorial chic.

By so adorning fish raised at hatcheries, experts will first seek to determine what migratory habits trout acquire and how soon, as well as how long many survive after they are distributed.

WHEN WORK INTERFERES WITH SCHOOL, IT'S CHANGED

The pupils of Franklin school in Stockton may have been disappointed, but the teachers were not.

A Pacific Gas and Electric Company construction crew had a job to do outside the school recently that required the use of air drills. The noise interrupted the lessons, and it looked as if school would have to be dismissed. But the expected did not happen. A letter from the teacher to the company, via the Stockton Record, tell the story:

"The principal interviewed the men in charge of the work, and the crew was moved elsewhere for the day. The workers were back the next morning, and the teachers prepared to suffer the inevitable. But—and this inspires the most kindly feeling of gratitude—the crew confined its noisy work to the hour before school, the noon hour, and the hours after dismissal. Gentlemen, we thank you, and hope that your consideration has not occasioned too great expense and trouble."

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Okla.

Before a city can accomplish much it must have team-work. Its citizens must co-operate—they must show a willingness to help one another.

A spirit of co-operation and pride in the home city must be instilled into every thought and action of every individual. Cities that are going ahead the fastest show this spirit.

A city must sell itself to its citizens before it can sell itself to the outside world.

In many cities part of the citizens pull one way and part another, resulting in discord among the ones who should pull together.

There is something good in every person. If people knew each other better, they would pull together better. If citizens don't pull together, they will have no pull anywhere.

Cities must be awake to their opportunities and stay awake.

If a city is to succeed, very citizen must assist in the working out of plans for better business and development.

THOUSAND DISASTERS RECEIVED RED CROSS AID IN 50 YEARS

American Society to Celebrate Its Birth Year With Nation-wide Observance

Tornadoes, floods, forest fires and other calamities and upheavals of nature have visited the United States more than one thousand times in the last half century.

All of these were of severe intensity, causing loss of life and great property damage. Minor catastrophes were not counted in this list of disasters, which has been made public by the American Red Cross, in connection with the celebration this year of its fiftieth birthday.

It was on the evening of May 21, 1881, in the modest home of Miss Clara Barton in Washington, D. C., that the American Association of the Red Cross was first formed. Before the year was out, and before, indeed, the United States Government had officially moved to approve the Treaty of Geneva, adding this nation to the company of thirty-two others adhering to the treaty to protect wounded in warfare, Miss Barton had plunged the small society into a disaster relief task.

First Red Cross Unit

This was in the north woods of Michigan, where forest fires swept the homestead farms of pioneering families. Miss Barton, as president of the Red Cross, had organized a branch in Dansville, New York, where she was sojourning. This little group immediately raised money, food, clothing and other supplies and sent them to the forest fire victims. In Rochester and Syracuse, New York, nearby, word spread of this charitable enterprise, and Red Cross auxiliaries were organized there to help. So began the disaster relief work of the Red Cross fifty years ago. In the intervening years, millions of men, women and children have been aided. Thousands of homes have been restored. Thousands of persons, overwhelmed by floods, tornadoes, and fires until all they possessed had been wiped away, have been rehabilitated and prosperity and happiness again smiled upon them.

This year has been dedicated by the Red Cross and its chapters in 3,500 communities to commemoration of the events which led to the birth of the society in the United States.

President Hoover Speaks

The celebration of the anniversary was inaugurated in Washington at a dinner, attended by many distinguished men and women, at which Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes presided, and President Hoover, who is the president of the American Red Cross, was the chief speaker. Judge Max Huber of Geneva, Switzerland, the president of the International Committee of the Red Cross, in which fifty-seven nations are joined in a Red Cross brotherhood, also was a speaker, as were Chairman John Barton Payne of the American Red Cross, and Miss Mabel T. Boardman, secretary, and veteran leader of the society.

The Red Cross standard, which flies all around the world where mercy is needed, was first introduced as an ideal in our modern civilization in Geneva in 1864, when the international Red Cross convention, afterward to be known as the Treaty of Geneva, was signed by twelve countries agreeing that on the battlefield the wounded should be given aid by doctors, nurses and others, who should wear the sign of the Red Cross, and be treated as neutrals in the warfare.

Two Americans attended this first convention, the American Minister George C. Fogg, and Charles S. P. Bowles, representative in Europe of the United States Sanitary Commission, a volunteer organization of sympathizers with the North in our Civil War. Facts they gave resulted in adoption of some of the American ideas.

Returning to the United States, Fogg and Bowles sought recognition of the Geneva Treaty, but the Grant administration took no interest. Under Hayes, the same lethargy was encountered.

Clara Barton Founder

But there had emerged from the Civil War period a middle-aged woman who had seen much service on the battlefields around Washington. This was Clara Barton. Ill health caused her to make a trip to Europe in 1869. There she became interested in the Red Cross idea, and joined a unit which saw service in the Franco-Prussian war. Upon her return home, she launched an active campaign for the treaty, but met the same opposition as her predecessors. However, President Garfield, when he came into office, recognized the merits of the movement, and when death by assassination removed him, his successor, President Arthur, sought approval by the U. S. Senate of the treaty. Thus was consummated a seventeen-year fight in this nation for a humanitarian ideal. Clara Barton was recognized as the society's founder and was its president for twenty-three years. She died in 1912 at the age of 90 years.

It is not generally thought of, but the flag so familiar in every civilized nation as the emblem of the Red Cross, had a simple derivation. Because the originator of the movement, Henri Dunant, was a Swiss, and the first treaty to protect wounded in battle was drafted and signed in Switzerland, the flag of that Republic—a white cross upon a red background—was reversed, and the Red Cross came into being.

SIDELIGHTS

A snake serum, recently discovered by a Brazilian scientist, is said to have proved to be an effective anti-toxin for bites of the deadliest snakes, including the rattlesnake, cobra, moccasin and copperhead. Some day science may find an tni-toxin for bootleg whisky.

One never knows what dangers lurk in the path. Recently Mrs. Amelia Facteau strolled serenely along a Washington street, when without warning she was attacked by a big blue goose, which knocked her down and inflicted many bites and scratches. The goose's owner, Mrs. Rose Regland, was assessed $50 damage.

The theory of the superiority of mind over matter got another boost the other day. John Morraine, of Montreal, has been paralyzed in his legs for three years. He had no idea that he would ever walk again. But when lightning struck his house, he forgot his infirmity and ran for dear life.

Two famous men are mourning the loss of their pet dogs. Snip, favorite terrier of King George V, died from choking on a feather. Igloo, who accompanied Admiral Byrd to both the North and South poles, died from indigestion. The Admiral abandoned a lecture tour to go to his sick dog in Boston, but poor Igloo died before his master reached him.

Pathfinder asserts that the following answers were given in an examination of students seeking entrance to Yale Divinity school: 1. Abraham wrote Genesis. 2. Palestine is watered by the Nile. 3. Hezekiah was king of Deuteronomy. 4. The Flood was an example of an apocalypse. To round out this amazing information, they might have credited Senators Nye and Caraway with the authorship of Revelations.

As Food administrator Herbert Hoover in 1917 had coupons distributed on which housewives pledged themselves to aid in food conservation. A patriotic woman in La Junta, Colo., signed the pledge and sent it in a few days ago. She will probably be surprised to learn that the World war is over, and that people are now being advised to eat until it hurts, so as to reduce the wheat surplus.

Governor Roosevelt has dismissed the charges brought against Mayor "Jimmie" Walker of New York City by a "city affairs committee" seeking the mayor's removal. Now the "reformers" are after the governor's scalp, and the city muddle may have a detrimental effect on his presidential boom, according to some political observers.

Washburne public school in Chicago has a course for golf caddies. Perhaps they learn the meaning of strange new words they will hear on the links.

Addison said, "Nothing is capable of being well set to music that is not nonsense." Anyway, modern song writers seem to agree.

Secretary Lamont says business is slowly beginning to improve. No one will question that the adverb "slowly" is well chosen.

AIRPLANE FATALITIES

In the early days of flying, if our memory serves us correctly, most persons involved in airplane accidents were killed outright. At least a very large percentage were. It was a little surprising, therefore, to read a recent government report which states that during the last three years only one out of seven persons involved in airplane crashes were fatally hurt.

More surprising still is the statement that of all those involved in air accidents, 60 per cent received no injuries at all. About 15 per cent were killed, 10 per cent were seriously injured, and 15 per cent were only slightly hurt.

Causes of accidents have been studied, resulting in the conclusion that about 57 per cent were due to errors by pilots, structural failures in planes caused a little more than 9 per cent, motor failures 17 per cent, while miscellaneous and doubtful causes account for the remainder.

During the three-year period covered by the report, there was a total of 2,994 accidents recorded, involving 9,558 persons, of whom 1,413 were killed, 974 were severely injured, 1,366 received minor injuries, and 5,805 were unhurt.

Ten college professors will now study the effects of prohibition, which ought to yield at least ten new conclusions on the subject.

Chairman Nye says Bishop Cannon is making sport of the Senate investigators. Well, nearly everybody else is doing it, too.

It's hard to convince a jobless man that his hunger is merely psychological.

Political writers are busy picking out Democratic presidential possibilities—mostly impossibilities.

ORDINANCE NO. 172

AN ORDINANCE PRESCRIBING ADDITIONAL DUTIES FOR THE TAX COLLECTOR AND PROVIDING FOR THE PAYMENT OF FEES THEREFOR.

The City Council of the City of Daly City do ordain as follows:

SECTION 1. The Tax Collector of the City of Daly City shall upon request of any individual, firm or corporation, furnish such individual, firm or corporation with a report of taxes, assessments, delinquencies, penalties, etc., due said City of Daly City and standing of record as a lien and/or encumbrance against any designated parcel or parcels of property within the city limits of said city. Said report to be taken from the official records of said city.

SECTION 2. In one hour they're coming to dinner
...my automatic electric range is doing the cooking now!

THAT'S THE ADVANTAGE of cooking food with an electric range—you do not have to spend hours in the kitchen watching the cooking.

You simply prepare the food, place it in the oven, and the rest of the afternoon is yours—for social engagements, shopping or any other activities. When you return home, the dinner is perfectly cooked—hot—and ready to serve.

Even when you have company for dinner, cooking is simple and easy. As a result, you look your best. You are at ease. Entertaining in your home is a pleasure.

The electric range of today has faster cooking elements—just as fast as you want them. Its white porcelain enamel will harmonize perfectly in your kitchen. As for cost of operation, 4c worth of electricity, on the average, cooks the dinner for four persons.

For clean, convenient cooking you should have an electric range. A small payment down will place the range of your choice in your kitchen, ready to use. Come into our office or a dealer's store and see the beautiful new electric ranges.

Thanks for the Ride

"Where's the car, dad?" asked the son of an absent-minded professor.

"Why, dear me," he said, "I really don't know. Did I take it out?"

"You certainly did. You drove it into town."

"That's very remarkable," replied the professor. "I remember now that after I got out I turned around to thank the gentleman who had given me a lift, and I wondered where he had gone."

"Sampson had the right idea about advertising. He took two columns and brought down the house."

The Real Reason

Inspector (to little Binks, who has reported that his wife is missing): "So you want us to find her; is that so?"

Little Binks: "Er—no—thank you."

"Well, why did you come here?"

"Because, if she came back and found I hadn't done anything about it, she'd half kill me."

When you are concerned about lumber and building materials the services of our entire organization are at your disposal. And we cordially solicit your valued business.

Two small boys were out hiking in the woods, and one of the lads stopped and picked up a chestnut burr.

"Tommy," he called excitedly, "come here. I've found a porcupine egg!"

Jim: "How am old George today, doctor?"

Doctor: "Poor fellow. He's lying at death's door."

Jim: "Jes like old George. He nebber gives up. At death's door—an' still lying."

We can now supply you with coal at much cheaper prices than you can obtain later on.

Dad Knows

Small Boy: "What is college bred, pop?"

Pop (with son in college): "They make college bred, my boy, from the flour of youth and the dough of old age."
